Beggars Are Taboo In Mokena

Some of the business men of Mokena have been pestered with panhandlers of late and the other day August Werner placed a notice in the window of his meat market reading "No Beggars Allowed". When asked the meaning of this sign he declared he had been besieged of late by Knights of the road who begged for meat which they cooked at the village hall. After giving meat to some of the wayfarers he soon had a regular run for meat, hence his sign tabooing beggars.

Orland Cuts Out Filling Station Tax

The Orland Park village board at their meeting Monday night revoked an ordinance which has required the paying of a special license fee of $5 per year by gasoline filling stations operating in the village limits of Orland Park. The board discovered recently that the ordinance in question was in conflict with the state law, hence its revocation. Had the ordinance been in operation prior to 1919 it would have been legal. The ordinance revoked was adopted by Orland Park in 1929.

Engineers Fail to Get Revenue Yielding Project Across

By a popular vote of two to one residents of Belvidere, Illinois, this week rejected a proposal to build and operate a municipal electric plant of their own to supply electricity to the community. The defeated proposition also included the proposal to raise money for erecting the plant by issuing public utility certificates against it. The unofficial count of the 3669 votes cast in the referendum showed 2334 against the measure and 1198 in favor of it.

The overwhelming defeat of this issue in Belvidere culminates a heated controversy extending over a considerable period of time during which the city fathers were considering the renewal of an expiring franchise granted to the Illinois Northern Utilities Company.

The utility company contended that the agitation for the municipal plant was sponsored by interests outside of Belvidere who were to reap a profit from the sale of the proposed new plant and equipment. In the development of the controversy it was brought out that the contract with the outside "unprejudiced" engineering firm which had recommended the purchase of the municipal plant included a clause providing that, in addition to its fee for making the study, the engineering firm was also to receive a commission upon the expenditures which their recommendation entailed.

Much information regarding the actual costs of building the plant, the cost of its operating and maintenance, as well as the probable ultimate increased cost of electric service to Belvidere householders was circulated by the Belvidere Taxpayers' League, an organization of local merchants and leading citizens.

The decided sentiment against the measure in Belvidere, and in Kewanee where a similar proposal was recently put to a popular vote and likewise defeated, appears to be significant in view of municipal ownership suggestions having been made in other Illinois towns during the past few months, according to several authorities on municipal affairs. It is pointed out that these two cases are being taken as an indication that municipal plant agitation does not generally have the backing of the voting public in instances where the issue is brought to a direct referendum.

Tinley Men Attend Horner Inaugural

Mr. Irving Bettenhausen, Democratic leader of Bremen Township and Judge Clarence H. Goessel of Tinley Park were guests of the organization on the special train on the Illinois Central railroad which made an especial stop for the two at Harvey station and at the inauguration ceremonies for Governor Horner at Springfield.

They advise that there were many thousands of people at the inauguration and that the arsenal was overflowing with people from all over the state.

While in Springfield they also visited the capitol building, Lincoln's home and tomb and various places of interest.

Judge C. Goessel Resigns as Coach

Judge Goessel for the past eight years acting in the capacity of basketball coach and official, for the Triangle Club of Tinley Park, announced his resignation on Friday evening.

Judge Goessel who was one of the organizers of The Triangle Club and its president for three terms, advised his reason for retiring from the above mentioned duties was due to the fact that other duties kept him away from practice sessions and games. He is employed in the police department of the county institutions at Oak Forest and the hours of duty are changed at various times.

The judge labored hard for no remuneration for the upbuilding of athletics in Tinley Park, and the surrounding community. While a member of the Lions Club, he fought for the addition of a gymnasium for the school when various others were fighting for a swimming pool. His points were that a swimming pool could only be used approximately 3 months a year, would cost nearly as much to build, and would cost more for upkeep. The pool needing life guards, changes of great amounts of water, etc.

For many years, he not only organized and coached basketball, but also managed and coached the baseball and football teams, training the players with various plays, getting games, verifying games, getting the players together for out of town games and with the help of various townspeople and fans managing to arrange free transportation for the players and followers.

Judge Goessel when asked which teams he considered his best, advised that last year's teams of home town boys who won trophies in all of the three tournaments they played in, he considered the best; having the first place in the Midlothian tournament, second place in the Harvey tournament and third place in the Tinley tournament.

Prior to his coaching in Tinley the Judge played on the South Chicago Whales team, the Whiting Owls team, both semipro teams. He played and coached the Cloverleaf Athletic Club teams of Blue Island, played on the Blue Island Triangle Club Baseball and basketball teams of Blue Island, played and coached the Hegewisch A. C. basketball teams and played four years of baseball, three years of basketball, and two years of football on the Blue Island High School teams, being captain of the basketball and baseball teams in his senior year. He also played on the Kent College of Law team while attending that school.

She was the widow of the late Henry Schmuhl. She is survived by one son Erwin, five daughters, Mrs. Alma Hinspeter, Mrs. William Seil of Troy, Mrs. Pleasant Parks, Mrs. Edward Fitzer, Mrs. Fred Klatt and one sister, Mrs. Charles Kitzrow of New Lenox and ten grand children.

STATE COM. INSTITUTES NEW POST AT MOKENA

About two hundred guests attended the institution of the new Wm. Martin Post No. 725 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the installation of the officers of this Post held in the St. Mary Hall in Mokena, Saturday night. The new Post was formed in the Lincoln Highway east of Frankfort and the members are all from that section.

There were representatives present from 20 different Posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars from Chicago.

The drum and bugle corps of Cantigny Post of Joliet lived things up with their stirring music and rolling drums. Prior to the installation exercises the corps marched down Wolf road up Front street to the Rock Island depot in Mokena. They played a number of selections and then marched back to the hall.

Past Commander Carl Rosenbaum of Joliet Post was in charge of the installation ceremonies and introduced the various speakers.

State Commander Henry Marquadt of Chicago instituted the new post.

The officers of the Wm. Martin Post No. 725 of Lincoln Estates are as follows:

Commander, John Jones.
Senior Vice Com. Henry Popp.
Junior Vice Com. Sylvester Taylor.
Quarter Master, A. C. Becker.
Chaplain, T. Jennings.
Guard and Sentinel, Art Schiller.
Serg. Major and Quarter Master, Floyd Schlager.

Adjutant, Wm. Lockwood.
Trustees, Slagel, Diedrich, Neidringhaus and Gornia.

At the close of the installation services Comrade Ernest Salensky of Chicago presented the Cross of Malta and the colors of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to each officer of the new post and gave an interesting talk on the meaning of the emblem.

The Cross of Malta is associated with the early Crusaders.

Relief Officer Edward Nixon of Joliet gave an outline of the work being done by his Post in that city.

Among the outstanding members of the Chicago Posts was the post known as Leyden's Own No. 2245, practically all of the officers of the post being present. The commander is George Hruska, a noted painter of medical subjects. Mr. Hruska has painted four masterpieces depicting medical subjects which have been hung in the Hall of Science of the Chicago World's Fair. Mr. Hruska studied abroad eight years and many years in this country before painting his masterpieces. Members of his family posed for some of the figures shown on the paintings. The canvases are 7x9 feet in size. Mr. Hruska is a very interesting man to meet and is the idol of his post.

Another outstanding figure was Jake Alex who was awarded a Congressional medal. During the World War he exterminated two machine gun nests and killed 11 enemy soldiers single handed.

One of the members of Leyden's Own Post was awarded the medal of The Purple Heart sometime ago.

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Cantigny Post of Joliet were also present. The ladies from the Lincoln Estates prepared and served a fine luncheon at the close of the installation ceremonies. Dancing closed the evening's festivities and everyone present enjoyed a delightful time.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars are different from the American Legion inasmuch as only those ex-soldiers, sailors or marines who saw service in foreign waters or on foreign shores can join this organization which was first organized in 1899. The new Post just instituted makes 137 posts for Illinois with a paidup membership of 13,500.

All those ex-service men in Mokena and Frankfort who saw foreign service are invited to join the new Post. Full particulars may be obtained from John Jones, Commander of the Post.

We wish the new Post a very successful career and know they will be a valuable asset to the community.

Give Thyself

The only conclusive evidence of a man's sincerity is that he gives himself for a principle. Words, money, all things else are comparatively easy to give away; but, when a man makes a gift of his daily life and practice, it is plain that the truth, whatever it may be, has taken possession of him. —Lowell.

Donkey Leads a Blind Race Horse

ONE of the most touching examples of loyalty between animals is to be found at the Holly Beach farm, near Annapolis, Md., where this lowly donkey, Balaam, acts as guide for his inseparable companion, Light Brigade, winner of many important races before he lost his sight. By means of a bell tied about his neck, Balaam leads his pal to the grazing grounds and the water trough, carefully avoiding all pitfalls. Light Brigade is now enjoying a life of ease at the close of his brilliant career.

STORY FOR YOUNG FOLKS

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

JOHNNY CHUCK GETS HIS NOSE PINCHED

DOWN from the Northland one still night while the little stars looked down from the sky and twinkled came Jack Frost. He came silently and he worked silently in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows. He opened the chestnut burrs and the walnut husks. He painted the leaves of the maple trees and the beech trees and the birch trees and the sumacs and all the other trees except these which keep green all winter, and he pinched the stems so that the first Merry Little Breeze would shake them from the trees in showers of red and gold and brown. He covered the Green Meadows with a thin white sheet which people call by his own name—frost. All this he did in the still night, and then he made ready to race away back where he had come from as soon as jolly, round, red Mr. Sun should kick off his blankets and begin his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky.

So He Sat There for Some Time Staring Out and Trying to Get His Sleepy Wits Together.

Peter Rabbit and Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote and Lightfoot the Deer and Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter and Jerry Muskrat and Paddy the Beaver and Buster Bear and Flooty the Owl, who, as you know, are usually abroad in the night, knew what was going on. On the whole, they were rather glad to welcome Jack Frost, for they had new thick coats to keep them warm. But Johnny Chuck and Happy Jack Squirrel and all the other little people who curl up in their beds and sleep through the night as people are supposed to do, knew nothing of the coming of Jack Frost until they awoke just at the break of day. Then when they poked their noses out of their houses Jack Frost slyly pinched them ever so gently by way of introducing himself.

Now Johnny Chuck was, as you know, very fat, very fat indeed. For weeks he had been eating all that he could. He had been stuffing himself just to make fat so that he might sleep through the long winter in comfort. Of late he had been getting very sleepy. Fat people usually are sleepy. So Johnny Chuck had been going to bed much earlier than he did in the summer and finding it harder to get up early in the morning. On this particular morning somehow he didn't want to get up at all. He stretched and yawned and tried to make up his mind that he was fat enough.

But he remembered what Sammy Jay had told him of how Jerry Muskrat and Paddy the Beaver were preparing for a long hard winter and of how old Mother Nature had given Reddy and Granny Fox and Buster Bear and Billy Mink and Little Joe Otter extra thick coats.

"I may as well eat a little more while I can, and so make sure that I have fat enough to carry me through in case Mistress Spring happens to be late in coming back," thought he. "I guess perhaps today will be the last day I will have to eat. I'm getting tired of eating. Seems to me I never was so sleepy in all my life."

He yawned and stretched again, then very slowly crawled out of bed and started up his long hall to his doorway. He was still blinking as he poked his little black nose outside. Now Jack Frost had lingered just as long as he could, for the Jolly Little Sunbeams were already hurrying across the Green Meadows, and Jack Frost knew that he was not yet strong enough to face them. He was just getting ready to leave in a hurry when he saw Johnny Chuck's little black nose poking out of his doorway. The temptation was too great to resist. Jack Frost paused just long enough to reach out and gently pinch that little black nose.

"Ouch!" said Johnny Chuck and pulled his nose back. Inside his hall it was as comfortable as ever, and so he sat there for some time staring out and trying to get his sleepy wits together. He had half a mind to turn right around and go back to bed. At last a Jolly Sunbeam crept in. This decided matters for Johnny. He would at least go out and see how things looked. Out he went and sat up on his doorstep. Jolly, round Mr. Sun smiled down on him, but somehow Johnny couldn't find any warmth in that smile. He looked over to the nearest clover patch, and somehow it didn't make him the least tiny bit hungry. Then, right then, he made up his mind.

"I'm fat enough!" said he. Turning, he kicked up his little black heels and disappeared inside his house. Peter Rabbit came along just in time to see those black heels vanish.

"I do believe," said he, "that Johnny Chuck has gone to bed for the winter." Peter was right, Johnny Chuck had. © 1932, T. W. Burgess.—WNU Service.

Inca Gold Excavated

TASTY LITTLE SARDINE

THE little silvery herring which we call sardine comes from the coast of Maine.

We do not serve this delightful little fish often enough to learn of the number of dishes which it may add to our list of good things. How about a rarebit? Everybody likes a rarebit.

Sardine Rarebit.

Mix two tablespoonfuls of melted butter with half a pound of rich cheese grated or broken into bits. Stir constantly while it melts, then add one egg beaten and diluted with two-thirds of a cupful of cream. Stir until smooth, season with paprika, a small pinch of salt and a few drops of tabasco sauce. Drain a box of sardines, broil them on slices of toast and pour over the hot rarebit. Serve at once.

One may buy the sardines put up in oil, or in tomato sauce, or "done" in mustard, so all tastes may be served and given a variety.

Curried Sardines.

Mix one teaspoonful each of sugar and curry powder, adding a pinch of salt. Put these into a saucepan with one cupful of cream and a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Stir until hot, then drop in a dozen sardines. In another pan heat some butter, and in it saute slices of bread large enough to hold a sardine and a slice of apple. Pour some of the hot apple sauce over each and serve.

Sardine sandwiches are probably the most popular way of serving this little fish, next to serving them as they come from the tin, with a bit of lemon and bread and butter. How would you like to try?

Sardines on Toast.

This is a most delightful dish for Sunday night supper or in fact for any day in the week. Put two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, stir until smooth and browned slightly, then add a half cupful of good soup stock; stir until thick, add a cupful of sardines from which the skin and bones have been removed and serve over rounds of hot buttered toast.

OUR GLASSES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

O H, THE glasses we wear we consider with care. Yes, the glasses we wear on our eyes. For we measure and test and decide on the best. In a way that is cautious and wise—But the rest Of our glasses we never surmise.

Yet we look all the day all at life all the way Through the glasses we wear on the mind. Some with glasses of hate make the little hurts great; There are some so exceedingly blind Here of late That they seem to see only behind.

But the best sort of glass shows each blossom you pass, Sees the past, and a little ahead, Makes the mean rather small, makes the kind rather tall, Makes the highway more easy to tread—After all Makes the world just as good as God said.

Stones of Odd Shapes

Relics of Bygone Race?

Three curious pieces of stone, which may possibly be relics of an ancient people, form part of a Rotura (New Zealand) collection. Two of the pieces, one of which is almost an exact miniature of the other, are shaped almost like solid pitchers. They are rounded as if turned on a potter's wheel and, although they cannot have been devised as vessels, appear to have been fashioned by some human agency. Both pieces are a species of sandstone, and were found by Mr. Kean in the Wairoa district at the bottom of deep outcrops of river metal, between 35 and 40 feet below the surface. The third piece is petrified wood, weighing several pounds. On both ends are cuts which have obviously been made with a species of ax. This piece was found with the larger of the two pestles, and from the depth at which it was found must have been buried for a very long period of time.

Solitude's great charm is that it is out of reach of talk.

Bronchial Troubles Need Creomulsion

Bronchial troubles may lead to something serious. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

With his tump-line Jim lashed the two guns to a provision bag, swung it to his back, adjusted the head-strap over his forehead, and piled on the rest of his outfit, while Smoke thrashed off through the "bush" after snow-shoe rabbits. For a half mile the trail held to the high land back from the river, then turned toward the water. Bent under his heavy load, Jim followed the moving legs of Omar under the petherboro. From the slowly increasing clamor of the rapids, Jim judged that they were nearing the end of the carry and approaching the river, but his sweat-blinded eyes did not lift from the moccasins of the man in front.

Suddenly, the legs of Omar came to a halt. Curious, Jim raised his head banded by the tump-line, but the canoe on Omar's broad back, blocking the trail, alone met his blurred eyes.

Then, to his startled ears came Omar's hoarse whisper: "De gun! Quick!"

"What is it? Game ahead?" Jim wondered, as he slipped off the head-strap.

As his load slid to the ground he wiped the sweat from his eyes and squinted past Omar toward the river. With a bound his heart started drumming against his ribs. There, twenty yards up the trail, leering at the waiting Omar, stiff as a spruce under the canoe, stood Paul Paradis.

"Trapped!" muttered Jim, working desperately to free the rifles from the knotted tump-line which bound them to the pack.

Again came Omar's whispered warning: "De gun! Tak' to de bush! Queek!" followed by the jeer of Paradis: "So you have come to viset me?"

With his gun almost free, Jim heard a movement in the bush, and looked up to see two Indians hurl themselves at the man waiting, legs braced, under the canoe.

As they came headlong on, with a lunge of his great shoulders Omar pivoted and swung the heavy petherboro crashing into their heads, at the same time slipping his tump-line and avoiding the falling boat. Then with a roar the enraged half-breed met the rush of a third man and, lifting him above his head in his vise-like grip, flung the writhing body to the trail. Leaping over the stunned Indian, he made for the surprised Paradis.

Dodging into the brush to escape the charging Omar, Paradis shouted: "No knives!" as two Ojibwas catapulted into the half-breed from the rear, bringing him to his knees.

But they were fighting to take alive a man whose strength was a byword from God's lake to the Barren Grounds, and, as he tripped and fell with two clawing Indians on his back, legs twined around his, Omar snarled: "I tak' you, too, Parades!"

When Omar clubbed his first assailants with his swinging canoe, Jim, with his hands on his lashed gun, was hurled to his face by the impact of two heavy bodies. As he felt the realization that all he had worked for—all he loved—hung on the next few seconds, flashed through his consciousness.

They had not knifed him! Thought they could take him and Omar with their bare hands, did they?

The old fury he had known in many a trench fight overseas returned as Jim fought the men on his back who sought to pin him to the ground. A desperate heave and he twisted and thrashed in their clinging arms until he reached his knees. A wrench, and he had a hand free, as they fell to the trail—a heap of straining, panting men. Chin clamped on chest to cheat their clawing fingers seeking his throat, again and again Jim hunched his fist over the shoulder into the jaw of the man who faced him, then by sheer strength bent back the head, until, with a groan, he fainted.

Desperate with the knowledge of the white man's superior strength, the remaining Ojibwa clung like a cat, with arms and legs, to Stuart's back, but wrenching himself from his grip, Jim beat him to the ground. On his knees, the hands of the dazed Indian fumbled with something on the trail, as Jim rose panting to his feet. Then, with a blind lunge he lurched forward with Stuart's recovered knife, to meet the crash of a swinging fist which crumpled him in a heap.

Omar!

Picking up the knife, Jim hurried ahead to aid his friend. As he approached, from the limp bodies of two men rose a pair of massive bleeding shoulders, from which a shirt hung in tatters. His heart checked as the sun flashed from a knife blade and a crouching figure left the brush to run at the square bulk of Omar's back.

"Behind you, Omar!" warned the running Stuart.

At the words, Omar leaped far to the side and turned to face the danger. But the courage of Paul Paradis was not equal to meeting the black fury of the unarmed half-breed, and he dodged into the spruce and disappeared toward the river.

"We get de gun!" panted Omar, "dere are more of dem!"

Tearing their rifles from their lashings, Jim and Omar followed Paradis. As they ran, from the direction of the stream sounded the yelp of Smoke.

"He's struck 'em! Hurry up or they'll get him!" cried Jim, increasing his speed.

Again above the distant drum-beat of the rapids lifted the angry yelp of Smoke. Then two rifle shots drove

FROM THE BEGINNING

At his fur post, Sunset House, in the Canadian north, Jim Stuart, trader in charge, with his headman, Omar, rescues Aurore LeBlond, daughter of Stuart's rival in the fur business, from an overturned canoe in the lake. In a spirit of fun, she and Jim arrange to exchange notes on a certain island. LeBlond, with Paradis, his half-breed lieutenant, arrives in search of the missing girl. Paradis displays enmity toward Jim. Going to the island to see if Aurore has left the promised note, Jim is ambushed by Paradis and forced to travel toward the LeBlond post. On the way he overtures the boat, leaving his enemy on the beach. Jim's superior, Andrew Christie, displeased at Stuart's trade showing, allows him, at his request, one year to "make good." Paradis bribes an Indian to ambush Jim and Omar. The attempt fails, and Jim takes the Indian to LeBlond. After hearing the story, LeBlond discharges Paradis. Jim and Aurore acknowledge their mutual love, though Aurore is returning to Winnipeg, and Jim has planned a canoe trip to make a personal appeal to the Indians, who have persistently refused to trade their furs with him. He finds that Paradis has enlisted their superstition to discourage them from trading with Stuart. Esau, half-breed partisan of Stuart, leaves on a mysterious journey which they hope will result in the overthrow of Jingwak.

Jim headlong, his heart cold with fear for his dog. At last the panting runners reached the river. But neither dog nor the canoe of Paradis was in sight.

"Smoke!" Jim called. "Here Smoke!"

There was no answering yelp. Omar, closer to the water, suddenly dropped to a knee and fired down river. Joining him, Jim looked to see, far below, a canoe paddled by two crouching men. Again and again the two took careful aim and fired at the distant craft, but the range was great, and the riflemen panted from exertion. At last the canoe turned a bend.

Back and forth through the thick bush near the landing Jim searched, calling the dog he loved—hoping, if he were alive, that the hurt animal would answer with a whine. But Smoke did not answer. The two friends widened their hunt, thinking the wounded husky might have crawled off somewhere to die. Finally Jim was forced to the conclusion that the dog had been shot in the water and carried down stream.

Poor Smoke! Sick at heart, Stuart bathed his grimy face and arms at the shore as his thoughts went back three years to the puppyhood of the friend he had lost. From the time when, a fluffy ball of fur, Jim had brought him south from the bay to God's lake, man and dog had known no separation; together they had faced the drive of the blizzards and the slant of the spring rains; shared the hardships of the white trails of the long snows and the summer white-waters. Two great tears ran down the bronzed face of the man who knelt by the river, for the slant eyes of his dog would never again shine with idolatry as his deep throat rumbled at Jim's caress; his plume of a tail beat frantically to Jim's call as he yelped in answer.

"Good-by, Smoke!" sobbed the man, turning his face twisted with grief from the sober eyes of his friend. "I loved every black hair on you. Jim will never forget! Good-by, Smoke!"

"Well you wanted to meet him again and you had your wish," said Jim, as they filled the magazines of their rifles and started back for the canoe. "Now did LeBlond lie to us and send him here to hide, or is Paradis disobeying orders? I wish I knew."

The muscles ridged on Omar's clamped jaws as he scowled his disappointment. "Eef he onlee jump me wid dose oders," he sighed. Then his hand slid back to the empty sheath on his sash. "Dey get my knife w'en dey hit me from behind. Dey get your knife, too? You have moch trouble wid dem?"

"They got mine, too, but I picked it up," Jim smiled at Omar's matter of fact reference to his struggle to free himself of the two Ojibwas. "We must wash these scratches, Omar," he went on, examining the bulging shoulders protruding through the ripped shirt of his friend. "They clawed you like a lynx."

Omar's marked face wrinkled in perplexity. "W'y you t'ink dat Parades try to tak' us wid hees hand? Ver' strange t'ing!"

"I don't know. Maybe he wanted to keep us in a cage to show us to the Indians up here," laughed Jim. "One thing's certain; if he caught us we'd have never seen home again. But that was a clever trick of yours—clubbing them with the boat, you old wolverine."

Discovers Evidence of Old Hawaiian Culture

Paved stone foot trails extending over the widest and rockiest stretches of lava, artificial fish ponds formed by building a barrier of rock across a narrow bay or cove, and playgrounds represented by prepared tracks down grassy slopes for sled coasting are among the accomplishments of a forgotten culture found by W. M. Walker of the bureau of American ethnology on the almost deserted island of Maui in the Hawaiian group.

He also found sites of 230 altar places, usually on headlands overlooking the sea and oriented towards the ocean, which evidently had a prominent place in the old religion. The largest of these was more than 400 feet long and had a terraced slope 50 feet high extending over the edge of the hill. Much of this culture, especially the paved trails, is attributed to the natives to the genius of a legendary hero.

The old chiefs, Mr. Walker found in his research carried on under the auspices of the Bishop museum of Honolulu, were buried in almost inaccessible cliffs where it is practically impossible to find their graves.

These young bucks of Paradis won't forget the trimming you gave them. There were three or four decorating the trail when I got loose and started to help you. How they'd laugh at God's lake at these people trying to take Omar Boisvert with their hands!" Omar's mouth widened across his square face. "Dese young feller on de Sturgeon keep dere hand off Omar Boisvert, ah-hah," laughed the swart son of Anak. "Dey got sore neck all right."

"D'you suppose they've come to, and are waiting for us with guns to come back for the boat?"

Omar shook his head. "We go an' see. I t'ink dey got dere fill for to-day. Paradis run; dey run. He keep dere gun een hees canoe. He want to tak' us alive, he not dare geeve dem de gun."

"You didn't kill any of 'em—break any necks—with those bear traps of hands?"

Omar thoughtfully scratched his head. "Wan, mebbe. I twist hees neck ver' hard." Then the narrow Again and Again the Two Took Careful Aim and Fired at the Distant Craft.

eyes of the half-breed suddenly clouded. "Esau!" he gasped. "Dey know we come; by gar, dey get Esau!"

The canoe of the old Indian, a day ahead of them on the river, must have run into the party of Paradis.

"He told me he would travel only at night."

The deep chest of the half-breed lifted in a heavy sigh. "Widout Esau we are no good," he said, as they started back to the canoe.

"He may have missed them. There's nothing to do but keep on."

Cautiously, deep in the bush on either side of the portage trail, the two men approached their canoe. As Omar had said, it was unlikely that Paradis had allowed his men to carry rifles to the ambush, for in their excitement the Indians would have used them, and for some subtle reason he wanted to take Omar and Jim unhurt. Nevertheless, the two men stalked their canoe as if sure that trouble awaited them. But the Ojibwas, recovered from their rough handling, had disappeared, leaving the canoe and outfit, with Omar's knife, lying on the trail, untouched.

"Dey were scare' we come back wid our gun and dey make for dere canoe."

As the moon rose and they pushed off into the shadows of the river shore, the words of Aurore LeBlond, "You'd die for love, so you say, but your duty—" haunted Jim's thoughts. Had he played fair with this girl who had so frankly shown him her heart? He had allowed a sense of duty—of loyalty to the company—to cheat them of priceless hours together before she went south. And now this loyalty was to rob them of their birthright. For even the masterful Omar admitted that Jingwak and Paradis would never allow the petherboro to return to Sunset House. And now that he felt in his heart that he had said good-by forever, Jim lived again and again each treasured moment he had spent with her. Once more, as the boat slid past the shadow-packed river shore, he felt the warm caress of her lips, heard her low whisper, gazed into the dark depths of her eyes and crushed her little body to his heart.

"Good-by, Aurore!" he murmured, and above the fret of the river on the near shore, he again heard her, "Good-by, magician, don't forget me!"

But he had forgotten her, the brooding Bowman told himself, when he left her and came north to his defeat. To him in his loneliness had come this miracle of the love of Aurore LeBlond and he had turned from it, put it aside as if a thing of little worth—this miracle of her love.

Green and Black Teas

The same kind of tea leaves can be used for the manufacture of either green or black tea, the difference of the two teas lying merely in the process of curing. Some varieties of tea leaves, however, are better adapted than others for making certain kinds of tea. In producing green tea the leaves are sterilized by steam. This prevents oxidizing or fermentation of the leaf which retains its green color and when boiling water is poured over it the result is green or greenish-yellow liquid. In manufacturing black tea the leaf is allowed to ferment, which changes its color from green to very dark brown. In the case of oolong or semi-fermented tea the fermentation is allowed to reach a certain desired point.

Lesson for January 15

JESUS AT WORK

Mark 1:21-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—But Jesus answered them, My Father's worketh hitherto, and I work, John 5:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Making a Sick Mother Well.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Spent His Time.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Busy at Great Tasks.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus Meeting Human Needs.

Mark's purpose in writing his treatise should steadily be borne in mind; namely: the presentation of Jesus Christ as the divine Servant energetically performing the will of God. The purpose in this section is to show the divine Servant bearing God's message to, and clothed with power to save, lost souls. Coupled with his superhuman strength is the unwearied sympathy, giving itself out in helpful and saving service.

I. Jesus Teaching With Authority (vv. 21, 22).

1. The place (v. 21). It was in the synagogue in Capernaum to which he with four disciples repaired "straightway" upon his entrance into the village. He availed himself of the regular channel of instruction. Though many abuses had crept into the synagogue service, he chose to associate the new with the old order.

2. The time (v. 21). It was on the Sabbath day. His faithfulness in observing the Sabbath brought him to the place where the people assembled to worship and to hear the Scriptures expounded. He came not to destroy but to fulfill the law, even the law of the Sabbath day.

3. The impression made (v. 22). The people were astonished. Two things about his teaching impressed his hearers.

a. The substance of his message.
b. The authority of its deliverance. The scribes, the professional teachers of the law, merely quoted the authorities, but Jesus with first hand knowledge set forth the truth with the enthusiasm of freshness and personal conviction.

II. Jesus Conquering Demons (vv. 23-25).

1. The outcry of the demon-possessed man (v. 23). When the power of God is manifested in the presence of evil spirits, there is bound to be an outcry from them.

2. The demon's confession (v. 24). "Thou art the Holy One of God." The one whose chief business it was to waste and destroy human life was in such miserable state as to desire to have nothing to do with Christ, and yet was forced to confess him as the Holy One.

3. Christ's attitude toward the demon (v. 25). Christ neither asked for nor accepted testimony from the demon, but sternly rebuked and cast out the foul spirit. Christ is not only himself pure, but is also able to deliver others from impurity.

4. The obedience of the demon (v. 26). The evil spirit was reluctant to leave the man and displayed his maliciousness to the very end, for he tore the man whom he was forced to leave.

5. The impression made upon the people (vv. 27, 28). The news of Christ's power spread rapidly over Galilee. The people were startled by two things:

a. The new doctrine which he brought.
b. The authority over demons.

III. Jesus Heals Peter's Mother-in-Law of Fever (vv. 29-31).

Jesus went home with Simon and Andrew. While in that home he learned of the condition of Peter's mother-in-law. He came at once and lifted her up and the fever departed. Divine healing is characterized by completeness and immediacy. Divine healing is, in this respect, to be contrasted with so-called faith healing, which is merely the exercise of the power of mind over the body.

IV. Jesus Ministering to Many (vv. 32-34).

Though the day was strenuous in its labors, he came unwearied even when the sun had set, to meet the needs of the multitudes who had gathered from all parts of the city. He healed many of diseases, and cast out many demons. The demons knew him, but the poor blind people knew him not.

V. Jesus Cleansing a Leper (vv. 35-45).

As Jesus preached in the synagogues of Galilee and cast out demons, his power became widely known. A leper therefore came to him saying, "If thou wilt, thou canst make me clean." Jesus put forth his hand and touched him saying, "I will, be thou clean," and immediately the leprosy departed and he was cleansed.

Look for His Leading

As a general rule, those truths which we highly relish, and which shed a degree of practical light upon the things which we are required to give up for God, are leadings of Divine grace, which we should follow without hesitation.—Fenelon.

Thy Kingdom Come

If you do not wish his kingdom, don't pray for it. But if you do, you must do more than pray for it, you must work for it.—John Ruskin.

World's Rubber Supply Matter of Importance

The electrical industry, probably more than any other, is dependent upon rubber and without it the telephone company would be compelled to go out of business or find some adequate substitute. The rubber supply comes from Brazil, East Indies and Indo-China. The rubber plantations cover many square miles and are divided like great cities into blocks. Just as houses on city blocks are numbered, the trees, in many cases, are numbered. Each of the hundreds of workers on the plantations cares for about 450 caoutchouc trees daily, collecting the sap from cups under spouts in each tree in a great latex pail. The tapper has to be an expert with his knife in attaching the small zinc spout through which the white latex flows into the small cup. The scar in the bark must be kept fresh with the dexterous handling of the knife, but the tapper must be extremely cautious not to injure the cambium, or formative tissue of the wood beneath, for that might kill the tree. On some of the plantations the annual yield of rubber is about 350 pounds to the acre. The juice, or latex, is transformed into crude rubber by curdling it with chemicals and rolling the curds into sheets, which are then smoked over a fire.

Canning Contest to Be Feature of The Farmers' Institute

A state-wide canning contest is being sponsored by the Department of Household Science of the Illinois Farmers' Institute for every county in Illinois urging every club affiliated with the state and any and all women everywhere to join this "Live at Home" program of canning. Let us find out, how, when and what to can to properly feed our families.

The Household Science of the Farmers Institute are to hold a contest and exhibit of canning and sewing at the State Farmer's Institute, February 22nd, 23rd and 24th 1933 in Joliet and anyone has the privilege to enter.

All jars are to be judged in accordance with the state score card and rules, and jars must be quart size.

There must be at least twenty-five entries in the entire exhibit in order that it be eligible for competition for the county sweepstake prize and the state prizes.

Each jar must be labeled on the bottom with the name of exhibitor, address and county, also stating contents of jar.

Jars will not be opened, as the winner of first place in each class in the county is to be entered in the State Contest held in connection with the state meeting at Joliet the week of February 22nd.

Jars entered in the state contest will not be returned to owner but used for charitable purposes.

COUNTY PRIZES

The prizes to be awarded to the winners in each county are:

Four or five sentences should be written and fastened to each garment telling the detailed cost of material, thread and trimmings (not to exceed 75c for the dresses and 50c for the aprons), also telling what type person the garment is intended for (young girl, young woman, elderly woman, etc.)

Each exhibitor may enter only one garment in each class. Her name, address and county must be plainly written on a tag attached to the dress.

If the garments are mailed to the exhibit, enclose in package a self-addressed envelope with enough postage to cover cost of returning garments, but if exhibitor plans attending the Institute in person, she may bring the garments and call for them.

The prize winning garment in each class (house dress and apron) from each county Institute will be sent or taken in person to the State Meeting at Joliet, February 22nd, 23rd and 24th, 1933 at which the same rules will hold good. WALKS 50 MILES TO TALK HIMSELF BACK INTO JAIL

Here is a man who walked fifty miles to find a telephone, because he wanted to go to jail. He was an escaped prisoner from the Jackson, Wyo., jail, where he was awaiting trial on a charge of assault to commit murder.

When this prisoner made his jail break, he thought he was lucky. But after dodging posers for thirty days in the high mountain country, he longed for the comfort and food which he would receive in even a jail cell. It was then mid-May, but snow covered the Two-Gwo-Tee pass, and he had to trudge fifty miles over the pass before he finally came to a telephone. Then he called Sheriff J. W. Thompson of Lander, and said he wanted to surrender. Sheriff Thompson told him to continue on to Dubols and give himself up to a deputy there. This the prisoner did, and the next day was in good spirits after having been fed and secured a night's rest.

He revealed that he had hidden out for a while in a shack on top of the continental divide, but had been compelled to leave because of his inability to get food.

DOCTOR DIAGNOSES AILMENT BY OVERSEAS TELEPHONE

From his office in Battle Creek, Mich., Dr. John Harvey Kellogg, head of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, recently diagnosed the illness of a patient in Paris by means of the overseas telephone service. The patient was the wife of George P. Butler, member of the British Parliament, and she had previously received treatment at the sanitarium in Michigan. Her symptoms were explained to Dr. Kellogg in two cablegrams before he made use of the telephone service.

This lamp gives the NEW LIGHT everyone is talking about

It's a simple thing but what a difference it makes in your living room lighting! Hidden under the shade of this new lamp is a reflector that focuses indirect light up to the ceiling and diffuses it evenly over the whole room. It's the bright-but-soft, flattering kind of light you need for entertaining. Because there is no glare, not a single heavy shadow, it's especially fine for bridge games. And there is a separate switch that turns on direct light for reading.

Pictured right is the outstanding reflector lamp value we know of. Its three-candle base is beautifully finished in gold or in bronze. Its pleated silk Celanese shade comes in gold, tan, rose or green, edged in braid to match. See it today at your Public Service Store. Only

Palos Youth

Author, Has Movie Ambitions

The following poem entitled "Spring Valley" is the work of Paul M. Gimbel of Palos Park.

Gimbel, a native of Palos Park who is free, white and 21 years old is the originator of the much talked of "One Thousand Hollywood Drive" and also originated "Seventy Palms Royale Terrace", "One Pleasant Place", and "Spring Valley Canyon" all of which names to be given to future streets and estates in Palos Park.

Paul is a cousin to Benedict Gimbel, Jr., head of a broadcasting station in Philadelphia and who is also a member of the family department stores of Gimbel Brothers who have stores in New York City, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Trenton, Milwaukee, Berlin, London and Paris and who also own the Saks-Fifth Avenue stores in New York City, Chicago and Paris. Ben married Sally Phipps of the movies in June 1931. The wedding took place at his mother's home in Philadelphia.

He also has cousins living at the Ambassador East, Chicago Beach, and Shoreland hotels in Chicago and at the Moraine Hotel in Highland Park.

He has met the following stars when they came to Chicago for personal appearances:

Jean Harlow, Lillian Roth, Josephine Dunn, Pola Negri, Alec B. Francis, Robert Bosworth, Bert Wheeler, Lloyd Hughes, Mary Brian, Buddy Rogers and also Claire Windsor (who was among those present at his cousin's wedding). Paul has known, the stage and screen star, Zelma O'Neal for many years and when she came to Chicago not long ago he drove her through Palos Park in her new LaSalle Convertible Roadster.

The young author's only ambition is to become a movie star. In the early spring he will act in a featurette which a movie company will make, using his poem, of "Spring Valley" in Palos beautiful. Next summer when he visits a cousin in Santa Monica he will, with the help of his many movie friends, start his screen career.

Paul likes Palos Park very much and hopes his home town will soon be a great movie colony since it is so near Chicago.

SPRING VALLEY

By Paul M. Gimbel

I sat beside the murmuring brook,
Of "SPRING VALLEY" in Palos beautiful,
It was the coziest little nook,
Nothing else could be more suitable.

There I began to meditate and dream
Of sad and happy days by and by Nothing more did grander seem Than the rosy blended clouds in the sky.

I think the beautiful violets blue
Are sent to us here on this earth,
And all the little sparkling gems of dew

Will make our thoughts of sadness,
All turn into thoughts of gladness.
And our hearts shall be full of mirth

So when the shades of evening fall,
When we look toward the hour of rest
Let the peace of night pass o'er you all - -

Then may you wake at dawn,
When the day is at its best,
And the dew is upon the velvety lawn . . .

Interesting Legends
of Trees Told By Mrs. W. B. Combs

Ancient Saxons used to pass children through a cleft ash tree to cure raptures.

A bunch of ash keys is a protection against witchcraft.

In Scotch Highlands the first thing given to a new born baby is the sap from an ash twig.

Ash leaves cure snake bite.

The Yule log was of ash as often as of oak. Put ash root with pearls to keep them from becoming discolored.

The negroes call the ash "Conjurin wood". Black ash for salt rheum and skin eruptions. Prickly ash for boils and typhoid fever.

"What the Ash and The Maple Learned" a legend given by Whirling Thunder of the Winnebago, tribe of Indians.

Long ago, birds, trees, animals and men knew each the language of the other, and all could talk together. In those days, the trees of the forest grew very large and strong. At last they came to know their strength too well. They became selfish, and proud and quarrelsome. Each tree boasted that he was the greatest and strongest. Each one struggled to gain for himself the most earth, the best air, the brightest sun. No tree had a thought for another. One day the trunk of a great Maple tried to crowd out an Ash. The Ash, of course, that he had as much right to stand there as the Maple, and he said he would not stir a limb. "Get out of my way," cried the Maple. "I am greater than you, and of more use to man; for I furnish the sweet water for him to drink." "Indeed, I will not," said the Ash. "I am greater than you; for I furnish the tough wood from which he makes his bow." At this the trees fell to Wrestling. Back and forth, in and out they swayed, each trying to throw the other. They forgot that they were brothers in the wood. Then the South Wind came along. He heard the loud voices and stopped to find out what the quarrel was about.

"I am greater than you, for I furnish the sweet water for man to drink," came the angry voice of the Maple, as he threw his huge trunk against the Ash. "No you are not," retorted the Ash, and he sent the Maple back with a great push of his strong elbow. "I am greater than you for I furnish the tough wood from which he makes his bow."

For a time the South Wind watched them writhe and twist and try to throw each other on the ground. Then he said "You, Oh Maple, do not cause the sweet water to flow for man; nor do you, Oh Ash, make your wood to grow pliant and tough for his bow." "Who does then," they asked defiantly. "Listen," said the South Wind, "and you shall hear." The Ash and the Maple forgot the quarrel. They bent their heads so low and close to listen, that an arm of the Maple slipped through an arm of the Ash. And as they stood thus listening, each with an arm locked in an arm of the other, the South Wind gently swayed them to and fro. Then a voice was heard, singing, "San noh - eh San noh - eh San noh - eh" which means, "The Mother of All Things"

Thus it was that the Ash and Maple learned that it was Mother Earth who gave them their life, and power, and strength, and that they were brothers, because they had one Mother. The Ash and the Maple whispered the secret to the birds. The birds came and listened to the voice, and went and told the animals. The animals came and listened and went and told the men. And thus all the earth children learned that there is one Great Mother of every living thing, and that all are brothers.

The Winnebago have a tradition that the Spirit of the Ash appeared to one of them long ago, and said its wood could be used for basket making and gave complete instructions how this should be done. In the making of baskets, the trees are first chopped down, and then pounded with the blunt end of the axe. This causes the wood to break up in thick strips, which are then split apart into the fine strips used for the weaving.

WINTER PLOTS A WICKED CRIME

THE VICTIMS: Those Motors Using Ordinary Oil that Drains Away from Heated Working Surfaces.

THE TIME: Those Cold Starting Minutes While Precious Motor Parts Must Run Dry at Warming Speed Until Oil is Pumped from Below.

GET THE
hidden quart
in time

THE QUART THAT STAYS UP IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

The Germ Process (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart never drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself, worth its weight in gold.

CONOCO

The One Oil that Gives You Perfect Protection for Winter's Worst Days Ahead

Drip! trickle! drip! through long night hours, ordinary oil drains away. When the pump quits, ordinary oil quits, leaving the motor's parts high and dry. You touch the starter. The motor roars. The pump strains at the sluggish oil. It is only a few minutes till circulation is completed. But, in the meantime, working surfaces only partly lubricated are in contact, while the motor makes three to five thousand revolutions. This causes 50% of all motor wear.

Prevent this loss. Choose not merely a quick oil, but an oil that never leaves. Choose the oil with the "hidden quart" that penetrates and combines with the metal surfaces of the motor itself. In the emergency of an empty crankcase, users have driven many miles, without damage, on this "hidden quart" alone. This proves that your motor need never suffer while waiting upon the pump. Don't remain in doubt. Drain and refill with the "hidden quart oil today.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN— The Greatest American

Bust of Franklin
in the Hall of Fame

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

JANUARY 17 is the anniversary of the birth of the greatest American—Benjamin Franklin. Insofar as the memory of last year's bicentennial celebrations, honoring the birth of George Washington, is still fresh in the minds of most Americans, there may be those who read this article who will exclaim: "What! Benjamin Franklin a greater American than George Washington?"

Several years ago a historian answered that question in the affirmative and gave as his reasons the following:

1. The expression of Franklin's greatness did not depend on events beyond his control.
2. He would have been a great man in any period of world's history, in any land.
3. He would have been among the great even if his endeavors had been confined to one only of several lines of activity in which his achievements were of the highest rank.
4. He would be a great man if he were living today.
5. Franklin was known throughout the world as a great man long before the Revolution, in which he played a part as big as that of any other great man of the period. Washington's greatness began with the Revolution.
6. There is no exact standard by which human greatness can be measured or compared. But one criterion is the opinion of citizens of other nations—free from the prejudices, either for or against, held by the fellow-citizens of a great man. Outside the United States Franklin would be named more than any other American as the greatest American and as one of the few greatest men of all time.

And in comparing these two great Americans what finer tribute could be paid to the greatness of Benjamin Franklin than was once paid by Washington himself? Writing from New York on September 23, 1789, to express his sympathy for an illness which had struck Franklin down, Washington said: "Would to God, my dear Sir, that I could congratulate you upon the removal of that excruciating pain, under which you labor, and that your existence might close with as much ease to yourself as its continuance has been beneficial to our country and useful to mankind; or, if the united wishes of a free people, joined with the earnest prayers of every friend of science and humanity, could relieve the body from pains or infirmities; that you could claim an exemption on this score. But this cannot be, and you have within yourself the only resource to which we can confidently apply for relief, a philosophic mind. . . . If to be venerated for benevolence, if to be admired for talents, if to be esteemed for patriotism, if to be loved for philanthropy, can gratify the human mind, you must have the pleasing consolation to know that you have not lived in vain."

But, dispensing with any invidious comparison between two great men, the listing of the following outstanding achievements of Benjamin Franklin should be ample proof of the justness of characterizing him as "The Greatest American":

He discovered that lightning is electricity; proved it first by observation and logic, and second by actual test with his kite; also invented the lightning rod which Dr. Charles Steinmetz said is still the best and most reliable protection we have against lightning.

He was the first to discover that a current of electricity has a magnetic effect, i. e. that it can magnetize a piece of steel. This is the fundamental principle on which the telegraph, the telephone and the electric motor are based.

He gave the world the best theory of electricity and modern science has adopted his early conclusions. These were that electricity consists of very minute particles, so small that they can pass between the atoms or ordinary matter. They are now called electrons, and have made possible the radio.

He invented the Franklin stove, the first successful wood-burning stove used in this country and he invented the invaluable contrivance by which a fire consumes its own smoke, and made the first smoke-consuming stove or furnace.

He helped establish the first chartered fire insurance company in America.

Among his many inventions should be included a three-wheel clock, a library chair that could be converted into a stepladder, an artificial arm for taking books down from high shelves in a library, a one-arm chair that could be used like a desk or table for writing, the pulse glass, an electric jack for turning a roast of meat over the fire, the laundry mangle, a copying press for taking copies of letters or other writing, and double spectacles—near and farsight glasses.

Although not the discoverer, he was the first to demonstrate the production of cold by evaporation, a fact up to that time unknown to science.

He was the originator of the modern science of the art of ventilation. He was the first to discover the poisonous quality which repeated respirations impart to the air in a room. He was the first to call attention to the folly of excluding fresh air from hospitals and sick rooms.

He pointed out the advantage, later adopted throughout the universe, of building ships with water-tight compartments, taking the hint from the Chinese.

He was the first to discover that the temperature of the Gulf stream is higher than that of the surrounding water, and the first to have the Gulf stream charted.

He was the first to demonstrate that oil on the water will still the waves.

He was the first to discover that northwest storms come out of the southwest, in other words, that storms travel in an opposite direction to the winds. His investigations concerning the weather resulted in the establishment of our United States weather bureau of which he is today acknowledged to be the father.

He conceived and organized the Junto, the forerunner of all Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions and Civitan clubs of today. The Junto developed into the American Philosophical society, America's first organization of scientists, in which he took great interest and pride and of which he is justly acknowledged to be the founder.

He conceived the idea and established in Philadelphia the first successful circulating library, the mother of all our free circulating libraries of today.

He founded the University of Pennsylvania and originated the elective system of college studies and also the so-called "group system," adopted later by many of America's leading universities. He was the first writer on education to recommend the teaching of modern languages such as French and German, in preference to the exclusive study of Latin and Greek. He was the first American educator to appreciate the importance of advanced teaching of history, political economy, and the science of government, also of technical training in agriculture and in the arts and sciences. He was likewise the first to prescribe athletics as an adjunct to college education.

He introduced the following useful plants or grains into America: Scotch kale, the kohlrabi, Chinese rhubarb and Swiss barley. He promoted silk culture in Pennsylvania. He introduced the yellow willow into America for basket making. He taught the farmers of Pennsylvania to plaster their land. He introduced broom corn into Pennsylvania from Virginia. . . . He was probably the first American to direct attention in a published writing to the value of education in agricultural science; and probably the first also to suggest the insurance of crops against storms, plant diseases and insect pests.

He was the first American economist. He was the first president of the Society for Political Inquiries of Philadelphia, the first society in the United States interested in promoting the study of political economy.

He started the first thrift campaign. His maxims of "Poor Richard" did more to encourage thrift and industry in the Colonies than any other one thing and they were circulated all over the world. They have been more often translated and printed than any other work of an American author.

He was the first to propose daylight saving. He devised a reformed alphabet which was based on simplified or phonetic spelling.

He devised the first scheme for uniting the Colonies, more than 20 years before the Revolution, and his plan of confederation was finally adopted in all its essential features and binds our Union together today.

He organized our postal service and was our first postmaster general.

He helped Jefferson write the Declaration of Independence.

He was our greatest diplomat and secured for us the aid of France in the Revolution and millions in money without which our independence at that time could not have been established.

He edited the best newspaper and the most successful newspaper in the Colonies. He was the first to attempt to illustrate the news in an American newspaper, and also the first to publish questions and answers in a newspaper. He is said to have drawn the first newspaper cartoon, the picture of a snake cut in sections to represent the Colonies before the Revolution.

He was "the first to turn to great account the engine of advertising, now an indispensable element in modern business."

He established in 1732 the Philadelphia Zetung, the first American newspaper to be printed in a foreign language.

He was a master propagandist—America's first. He constantly issued pamphlets, or wrote newspaper articles, to promote the interests of his city, or his country, or the good of mankind. His methods were always the same in promoting a cause: To develop informed public opinion on the question he first wrote something for publication that would attract public attention.

Of all the patriots, Franklin was the only one to sign all five of the great state papers—the Declaration of Independence, the Treaty of Amity and Commerce with France, the Treaty of Alliance with France, the Treaty of Peace with England and the Constitution of the United States.

He was the originator of the idea of a League of Nations. He suggested "a united party of virtue, an international organization which would consider world matters from the viewpoint of all nations." He was the first advocate in the United States of a policy of "legal condemnation and punishment of a nation which commits aggressive warfare."

RADIOTIC

Corn Bread That Will Please All

Delicacies Sure of Warm Welcome at Any Meal They Are Offered.

Different kinds of hot breads made of cornmeal are having a popular vogue just now among those who go in for all grades of elaborate or simple food. How it is to be made and whether the meal shall be yellow or white depends, in many homes, upon traditions and which section of geography the family came from.

Since most members of the average family, especially the men, like luscious hot bread at some stage of a meal, the relish with which corn bread is received is pretty sure to be ample reward for the amateur cook's bread-making bother. Sally MacDonnell writes, in the New York World-Telegram.

Corn Meal Pudding.

Sprinkle three tablespoonfuls corn meal into a quart of milk that has been heated to the boiling point, stirring constantly, then let it cook for 15 minutes in a double boiler. Add three tablespoonfuls molasses and let it cook five minutes longer. Take it from the fire and stir in a piece of butter the size of an egg, one-half teaspoonful each of cinnamon, ginger and salt, one tablespoonful sugar and an egg that has been well beaten. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven for an hour and a half. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Moonshiner's Muffins.

Sift together a cupful of corn meal, three cupfuls flour, one tablespoonful sugar, one teaspoonful baking powder and one teaspoonful salt. Make this into a batter with two cupfuls milk and two beaten eggs, then add two tablespoonfuls melted butter or lard. Pour into buttered muffin tins and bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven.

ALL PURITANS NOT ALIKE IN THOUGHT

Worked in Various Ways for Church Reform.

During the Sixteenth century the name Puritan was applied in England to all persons who urged a reform in the ritual of the established church. There were different degrees of Puritanism. There were those who wished only to bring about a reform of the church liturgy; others desired to abolish the episcopacy, while some declared against all church authority.

The pilgrims, as they styled themselves, who first formed a colony in Holland and subsequently emigrated to America, were "Separatists," so called because they had separated themselves from the Church of England and wished to maintain a distinct organization. These formed the Plymouth colony, which settled in New England in 1620.

In 1628 another company of Puritans came out and formed the Massachusetts Bay colony. These claimed to be members of the Church of England, and to have no desire to separate from that body, but to be unable conscientiously to conform to the established ritual. They sought in America liberty to hold their connection with the church, and yet to adopt a simpler ritual.

"We will not say," said Francis Higginson, "as the Separatists were wont to say at their leaving England, 'Farewell, Babylon! Farewell, Rome!' but we will say, 'Farewell, dear England; farewell the church of God in England, and all the Christian friends there.' We go to practice the positive part of church reformation, and to propagate the gospel in America."

Nevertheless, when once established in America, the Puritans claimed and practiced quite as much religious independence as the others. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mack and Bob Coming

To Rialto at Joliet

Seems as if the Rialto, Theatre, Joliet, was in earnest when they vowed they would make 1933 the biggest year of real entertainment bargains. After two weeks of very satisfactory hits, they come forward this Sunday, Jan. 15 with a tempting stage presentation, which headlines those inimitable radio stars from WLS, Chicago, MACK AND BOB, better known as TWO BLIND BOYS. Their conception and interpretation of honest-to-goodness entertainment is commendable. While MACK AND BOB head the stage unit, of which two other Chicago loop vaudeville acts make up a variety of personality, the screen presentation is not to be overlooked.
None other than ZASU PITTS and "SLIM" SUMMERVILLE (are you laughing?) are starred together in a story just built for them—"THEY JUST HAD TO GET MARRIED"— and so they did. And then the fun begins. Roland Young, Fifi Dorsay, Verree Teasdale and little Cora Sue Collins make up a comedy cast that will never let you down in continuous laughter.

The Rialto management adds with pleasure that there will be no increase in prices, but they do stress the importance of attending the matinee performances in order to avoid the evening rush, thus being seated without waiting.

The Choral Society has postponed its card party until January 25th because of the serious illness of Wade
Thomas, husband of the director.

George Munch and Ralph Agate left by auto last Saturday for a three months sojourn in Tucson, Arizona of several months duration. A week ago the choir of the Orland Park M. E. church tendered these popular young men a farewell party.
About fifty guests were present. Mr.
Munch is the superintendent of the Orland Park M. E. Sunday school.

Wade Thomas who has been in poor health was taken to a Joliet hospital Tuesday.

The Orland Park Volunteer Fire Department is planning to put on a moving picture show sometime this month if they can secure the use of the school auditorium. Further particulars will be given later.

The Bible Class of the M. E. church held a their monthly social meeting in the room over the Creer store Wednesday night.

Rev. John Mullen has been spending a few days in Chicago.

NEWS OVER STATION OPAC

The Achievement Club has selected the three act play "Safety First".
The play, a farce comedy has been received with great applause where ever given. There are ten characters in the play. Marvin Schmaderke and Violet Jacobson take the leading role, while Alice Nicolai has a very difficult part, keeping the humor in the play on edge.

Donald Uthe is home ill.

The following pupils in the primary room have received 100's in spelling during the month of December: Eleanor Knox, Eugene Uthe, Ruth Gee and June Schussler.

Robert Mohr is the only one of the primary room who has a perfect attendance since September.

The pupils of the sixth, seventh and eighth grade are on the honor roll. Sixth grade Donald Cleveland, Harold Morlock, Clarence Creer and Lucille Reish. Eighth grade Alice Nicolai, Violet Jacobson and Cyril Kay.

The spelling contest was won by the eighth grade.

Franklin Kruspe is the only one that has a perfect attendance in the intermediate room.

Mildred Doctor and Virginia Martini had the highest marks in arithmetic in the intermediate room.

The fourth, fifth and sixth grades sent a lovely basket of fruit to Donald Uthe and hope he will recover soon.

The intermediate room are raising a depression plant and everyone is interested in watching it grow.

Signing off until next week.
